WasteExpo's Food Recovery Forum and Organics Recycling Conference were once again smashing successes! Don't take our word for it; here are just a few examples of what our attendees and exhibitors had to say...

"The Waste360 Food Recovery Forum provides a unique opportunity to bring heightened visibility of the scope and scale of the food waste challenge to the broader waste management conversation at WasteExpo. It allows organizational leaders working at all levels of the food recovery hierarchy to discuss innovative solutions to creating a more sustainable, regenerative food system by reducing food waste."

— Steven M. Finn, Vice President of Sustainability and Public Affairs, Leanpath

"WasteExpo's Food Recovery Forum is an excellent event to connect with thought leaders, industry professionals, policy makers and potential partners working towards a shared goal to reduce food waste across the US. It provides an opportunity for presenters and attendees to share lessons learned and best practices, learn from peers, and develop key relationships that are essential to reducing food waste."

— Madeline Keating, City Strategist, Natural Resources Defense Council (NRDC)

"What an incredible experience to connect with like-minded passionate pioneers in the food recovery and recycling space. The Food Recovery Forum & Organics Recycling Program inspired new ways of thinking, and the support for our solution, Copia, was empowering. We're looking forward to next year's event and the progress we will have made to save our planet by limiting global emissions through a better understanding of surplus food and by donating it to those most in need."

— Paige Sullivan, Client Success, Director, Copia

"WasteExpo stands out as an opportunity to network with and learn from professionals specifically in the Food Recovery Space. The unique and undiluted experience of being with professionals specifically focused on edible food recovery results in exciting and valuable takeaways every year. I've been to many conferences where the primary benefit is networking. While the networking is rewarding, the exchange of ideas and information at WasteExpo leaves me with a list of action items every time. I spent the entire conference sending excited slack messages to my team about things we should try, people we should connect with, and programs we had to check out."

— Jennifer England, Head of Partner Development, Food Rescue Hero

"The remarkable distinguishing hallmark of the WasteExpo conference is its focus on driving innovation and continuously improving thought and leadership about composting and organics recycling. There are many brilliant and innovative thinkers here, collectively driving a positive sea change of tremendous value. This is what our industry needs. The insight, knowledge, and innovation we gather helps us make an invaluable leap forward."

— Rich Cohen, Founder, Elevate Packaging
